Short Biography

Italian pianist Fulvio Nicolosi (b. 2003) has been praised by Christopher Axworthy for playing with a "fearless abandon and youthful mastery that was breathtaking." A Third Prize winner at the prestigious Premio Venezia 2023 at Teatro La Fenice, he is rapidly establishing an international reputation as both a soloist and a versatile chamber musician.

Following degrees with highest honours and special distinction from the Conservatories of Catania and Perugia under Massimo Spada, Nicolosi's artistry was further shaped at the Accademia Chigiana under Lilya Zilberstein. He currently continues his development at the International Piano Academy Lake Como, one of the world's most elite centres for advanced pianistic training.

His career has led to performances across Europe—including London, Lithuania, and Germany—often in collaboration with the Keyboard Charitable Trust. His repertoire ranges from Baroque literature to 20th-century virtuosic transcriptions, with upcoming highlights including a solo recital for Fundación Eutherpe in León, Spain.
